Ever to Excel . . . Boston College students, professors, Jesuits, and administrators strive to meet the goals of excellence. Their quest "to excel" can be found in the classrooms, the office meetings, the student clubs, the libraries, the sports field, the theatres, as well as the surrounding communities. Sub Turri '90 invites you to look through our annual to get a taste of Boston College. We are positive that you will discover the enthusiasm and strength of our community. We hope we have captured the many ways BC succeeds to "ever excel."

The year 1990 begins both a new decade and a renewed hope in our rapidly changing world. As our four years at Boston College come to a close, we, as the first class to graduate in this decade, use our BC experience "ever to excel" in a rapidly-transforming global community. Striking a balance between the traditional Jesuit education and non-academic pursuits, the BC student emerges better able to cope with the "real world."

The BC Class of 1990, despite the characteristic apathy of the 80's generation, has managed to involve itself in a wide range of political, social, and environmental causes. Student groups have brought forth concerns for gender equality, racism, and justice issues in an effort to motivate those who remain imprisoned by apathy. Whether involved in organizations such as The Marketing Academy, Appalacian Volunteers, UGBC, the wrestling team, or AHANA, our class has consistently been active.

In a larger sense, BC students have been affected by a wide range of national and international events that have uniquely characterized our class' identity. In the wake of Black Monday's 1987 stock market collapse, more than fears of just an economic disaster swept throughout our nation. The presidential election of 1988 witnessed the reaffirmation of conservatism in domestic politics. Globally, unprecedented change in the Eastern European Communist countries has all but destroyed Stalin's Iron Curtain. South Africa's Apartheid appears to be crumbling with the resignation of President Botha and release of Nelson Mandela. Terrorism contined its senseless killing as the bombing of a Pan Am jet a few days before Christmas took the lives of two classmates. The world of 1990 has dramatically overshadowed the world we left behind as we entered BC in September of 1986.

Soon after the discovery of a gaping hole in the ozone layer miles over Antartica, calls for environmental reform and protection rang throughout Washington and the United Nations. American and Canadian environmental groups documented the extensive damage acid rain had caused to thousands of acres of forests and numerous bodies of water. Early in 1989, an Exxon oil tanker struck an iceberg in Alaska, spewing hundreds of millions of gallons of crude oil into the Pacific. The destruction of the natural ecosystem became imminent as the oil slick spread throughout thousands of miles of Alaskan coastline. Prevention of additional environmental disasters like this will challenge our generation well into the next decade.

Back on campus, the class of 1990 has similarly witnessed enormous change during the last four years. The Silvio Conte Forum, the largest area of architectual expansion on campus, houses a state of the art hockey and basketball arena. Demolition of Roberts Center soon followed the construction of Conte, creating space for a new chemistry building along Beacon Street. Two new Commonwealth Avenue dormitories presently stand on the former location of the Alumni Center. These dorms blend well with the aesthetics of their neighborhood. Both facilities include comfortable, modern apartments, exercise and weight rooms, libraries, and T.V. lounges. Most importantly, these two new dorms help to ease the ever-present housing crunch at BC.

Renovations to existing facilities in Campion Hall have improved the services of the Campus School. The entire Computer Center at O'Neill was revamped and updated for the start of classes in September. BC libraries continued to improve information technology with the addition of Quest Cataloging Systems in all of its seven facilities. In August, BC's main entrance received a face-lift with the completion of a new front gate.

In BC's surrounding communities, the Class of '90 encountered a somewhat hostile neighborhood. Back in 1986, tension off-campus had heightened at an alarming rate. BC Administrators continued to warn of serious consequences both on and off our campus during our freshman and sophomore years. However, BC students continued to clash with neighbors and Metropolitan Police. Soon, crackdowns became routine at notorious party spots such as "The House of Pain" and apartments along Cummings Road, Egremont, and South Street. Concern for students' safety and neighborhood order led to a wave of conservatism in BC administrative policies. The Boston Licensing Board's decision to ban kegs and limit alcohol consumption on all college campuses in the city marked the culmination of the Boston community's outrage and intolerance of rowdy, "abnormal" behavior. Swiftly following this move, new regulations regarding proper ID's at popular BC hangouts left legal-age students scrambling for a limited number of Massachusetts Liquor ID's. Unfortunately, the transition to a new system of identification both on and off campus left many students without access to Thursday night's Rat, a social "institution" for BC seniors. For the first two months of the Fall Semester, UGBC's Pub Series and The Rat were in danger of complete cancellation. Following an inundation of student complaints, BC's Administration deliberated with the Newton Licensing Board, eventually reaching a compromise admitting students to campus functions with a valid, bar-coded ID. In addition, the University initiated a crackdown of "excessive" drinking at student-sponsored tailgates. BC and Campus Police threatened to begin videotaping students' behavior at Alumni Stadium as a foodfighting "warfare" erupted weekly during the season. In reaction to these controversial policies both on and off campus, student protests and rebukes consistently filled "The Heights'" editorial pages throughout this year.

The Class of 1990 leaves Boston College with memories of physical changes on campus, a tightening of administrative policy and enforcement, and a year of unprecedented global change. As the graduating Class of '90 closes the final chapter, clothed in caps and gowns, and walks through the quad one last time as an undergraduate, we, the members of the Sub Turri staff, present to you this book as testimony of good memories, friends, and times past. Highlighted events and captured moments from student life to sports and academics fill these pages in our attempt to preserve the years that have passed so quickly . . .

A YEAR IN REVIEW

"A year in Review" and what a year to review! 1989 and 1990 brought "hellos" and "goodbyes" of many types. International lines were destroyed, domestic problems unfolded, and entertainment expanded. It is difficult to touch upon all of the stories and incidents of this past year, but one can definitely cite 1990 as a year of unification, confrontation, and implementation of new thoughts and realities. These photos taken from Time, People Magazine, Life, and Newsweek capture the events of this last year.

INTERNATIONAL

Clockwise, from top left: It was a year of international turbulence. Those who rose up against communism in China found their efforts stifled by an aggressive military. But the brief feeling of freedom gave this young man cause for rejoicing. Hungarians celebrated in Budapest's Parliament Square after their government changed the nation's political structure from communism to an independent republic. Solidarity reigned in Poland, as Lech Walesa took to raising money for the country's treasury. The U.S. ousted Manuel Noriega from his corrupt military dictatorship in Panama. And the whole world watched as the most powerful symbol of the division of East and West, the Berlin Wall, came down.

DOMESTIC

EARTHQUA

Clockwise, from top left: In October of 1989, a major earthquake shook the San Francisco area, leaving thousands homeless. Adding to the destruction were fires caused by breaks in natural gas lines. In Washington, D.C., the nation's homeless problem was epitomized by one of that city's 6,000 homeless sleeping on a grate outside the White House. In entertainment, the Rolling Stones shook the U.S. once again in a 36-city reunion tour. In Virginia, the United States elected its first black govenor, Douglas Wilder. In opposition to a pro-choice march on Washington, pro-lifers created a mock cemetery, representing one day's abortions in the United States. 72-year-old Zsa Zsa Gabor found herself in the limelight for slapping a Beverly Hills policeman who stopped her for expired tags. Her sentence--$12,000 in fines and court costs, 120 hours of community service and 3 days in jail. PTL leader Jim Bakker didn't fare as well. In a 6-week trial for 24 counts of fraud and conspiracy Bakker received a 45-year sentence to prison.

PEOPLE

Clockwise, from above: David Letterman continued to be a latenight favorite, though his competition stiffened. In the box office smash of the summer, Jack Nicholson went up against Batman as the Joker. Meg Ryan played one of the most realistic roles of the year as Sally in When Harry Met Sally. The B-52's made a fantastic comeback with their album Cosmic Thing. The entertainment world lost many great performers, including Bette Davis. Mike Tyson caused much media hype, eventually losing his title as Heavy Weight Champ to Buster Douglas. The Dukakis family faced personal and public crises over both Kitty's addictions and the Massachusetts state budget.

ACADEMICS

Jesuit ideals in education are inherently tied to our motto of "Ever to Excel". Through BC's four main undergraduate colleges, we as students, have been touched in one way or another by an educational foundation in using knowledge to serve others. Thus, as integral members of the School of Arts and Sciences, The School of Management, School of Education, or School of Nursing, the Class of 1990 leaves the Heights better prepared to meet the challenges of the "real" world and its often overwhelming complexities. Although no two students graduate with exactly the same academic experience, it is inevitable that he or she has been affected in some way by Boston College's faith and commitment in educating its students for both the benefit of "self" and others in our local and world-wide community.

SPORTS

"Ever to Excel" is an attitude embodied by all the athletic teams at Boston College. Every year our atheletes represent the university throughout the country with great pride and sportsmanship. This year was no exception. Although victory is always the quest of our teams, the hardwork and dedication of each player and coach outshines even the final score, continually bringing tradition and excellence to Boston College.

This past season the Eagles of Boston College set out on a mission. Facing a schedule of opposing teams which undoubtedly was one of the most difficult in the nation, BC knew it would not be an easy year. The Eagles would face four teams who ranked in Associated Press' Pre-season Top 25. In addition, Five of BC's opposing squads eventually would go on to post-season Bowl appearances. Surely, BC would be challenged each week. Yet the Eagles aspired to "fly high" and in turn, challenged the schools of football legend. With a devotion to hard work and a captured spirit of true fraternal teamship, the squad set out to achieve excellence on the field. The motto soon became: "We are one." One in spirit. One in effort. And in unity the Eagles would find their strength.

The Eagles began the year against the formidable Panthers of Pittsburgh. Pitt proved strong, and soundly beat BC, 29 - 10. But that difference in score would be the greatest BC would suffer throughout the season. In fact, the next week's heartbreaking loss to Rutgers, 9 - 7, would be the first in a string of narrow losses which would test the perseverance of both players and coach. The Eagles quieted Penn State's Nittany Lions at their home field of State Park for almost the entire game. However, a bootlegging quarterback scampered into the end zone in the final minute and managed to pull victory from the claws of the Eagles.

Who could forget the Eagle's next game at Ohio State? Quarterback Willie Hicks ignited an Eagle offense in the second half and led an amazing comeback which, unfortunately, would be just shy of miraculous. Nevertheless, the Eagles' effort was one to be proud of! New hope had rejuvinated fans' spirit. BC then returned home to defeat Temple, 35-14. The Eagles appeared to be a cohesive team unit, producing their highest scoring of the season.

On the following Saturday, Navy visited The Heights to battle BC. The Eagles performed consistently, but Navy managed to shock both the Eagles and a sold-out crowd at Alumni, leaving BC defeated with a 27-24 victory. Next, BC met The Mountaineers of West Virginia. Led by Heisman Trophy candidate, Major Harris, The Mountaineers pulled-off a 44-

30 win before another heartbroken sell-out crowd at Alumni.

Syracuse proved to be another difficult test for Boston College. Still shaken by previous losses, BC was forced to work with fewer players, having lost several teammates to recent injuries. Despite the odds, the Eagles played a tough game until the end, as the Orangemen scored again, leaving BC gridsmen with a 23-11 loss.

BC flew to West Point the following weekend and shocked an unsuspecting camp of cadets. With a plan of attack and execution any military would be proud of, BC captured a victory on foreign soil, 24-17! Next, The Eagles squared-off against the Cardinals of Louisville at Alumni Stadium. Louisville hammered at the Eagles' defense, escaping Chestnut Hill with a 36-22 victory. The season finale took place against The Yellowjackets of Georgia Tech. Unfortunately, the 'jackets stung late in the game to ground the Eagles, 13-12; it was only one point that stopped an Eagle victory that day. This frustrating loss seemed to symbolize most of the season.

As difficult as the season was, the Eagles continued to forge ahead. Each week brought encouragement not only from a team effort but from individual star performances. Kicker Brian Lowe became BC's all-time leading scorer and with fellow teammate, Rico Labbe, made post-season All-Star performances. Weathered veterans led the team throughout the season. Matt Kelley led the defense with 91 tackles. Tim Frager matched Mike Sanders in averaging 4.6 yards per gain rushing, while averaging 24 yards in kickoff returns. Ed Toner led the team in touchdowns while Mark Chmura topped the list of leading receivers. Waiting eagerly for next season is a fine group of talented young Eagles. Willie Hicks will take over from Mark Kamphaus and Mike Power to lead the 1990-91 Eagles to victory.

Surely, BC promises an exciting future for its football fans. We have a strong and well-directed squad of players. Next year's team will draw on strength shown in this 1990 squad. As anyone associated with this team will attest, the 1989-90 Eagles were a group of sincerely devoted and indefatigable young men. Clearly, it was a spirit of unity that made this team unique. While all teams strive to win, few can boast of being One! — Joe Regan

WINGED WARRIORS

When speaking of consistency and dedication to excellence in athletics at Boston College, one cannot overlook the Women's Soccer Team. Next year will mark the tenth year anniversary of the incorporation of Women's Soccer as a varsity sport at BC and in that time their accomplishments have been many. Not only have the Lady Eagles been nominated to the NCAA tournament a number of times, but in the last four years, they have captured three Eastern Collegiate Athletic Association championships. In pre-season polls, the Women's team has regularly been ranked among the top twenty Division 1 teams in the country and has played up to par with such national powers as U Conn, William and Mary and NC State. One of the highlights of this season was an intense match between BC and sixth ranked U Conn, which ended in a 1-1 tie, marking the first time BC has held U Conn back in 4 years. Another major accomplishment of the Women's squad was their close 2-1 loss to NC State, the Division 1 National Champions the last seven consecutive years.

This year got off to a rough start as the Eagles found themselves up against a number of formidable opponents who had increased in strength since last season. Such competition, however, helped to prepare the Eagles for some of their bigger games later in the season. Consistently performing well on the front line for BC were senior Katie Connelly and junior Gina Vassallo, and both made All-American this year. Starting in net, senior co-captain Diane Cordano proved a formidable force against some of the best strikers in the country and was a key factor in clinching an ECAC post season tournament bid for the Eagles. In the mid-field, sophomore Stacy Smith, senior co-captain Abbie Wallner, and junior Shelley Heisey all played outstanding, controlling the pace of play and creating exciting offensive scoring opportunities. At stopper, moving up from defense, senior Christine Carroll proved equal to the task of marking opposing center strikers out of play as well as acting as a transition player, moving the ball from defense to offense. This year was particularly memorable for Christine as she finally scored after four years on the Varsity squad.

Outstanding on defense for BC were sophomore Mary Lappin, junior Paula Schwartzbauer, senior Ellen Donohoe, and freshman Heather Hughes. As the season progressed, coach Susanna Kaplan moved Abbie Wallner to the sweeper position and Heather Hughes up to offense where she scored a number of goals. Abbie played excellent defense, defusing a number of dangerous situations, until she was unfortuantely sidelined with a knee injury.

Next year looks very promising due to the strength the underclassmen displayed throughout the season. Junior Nicole Condi, sophomore Rachel Sheridan, and freshman Sonja Withington should all be integral players, filling in for those starters who are graduating. As their schedule gets toughter, the Women's Soccer Team will continue to play consistently great soccer, producing winning records and always striving for an NCAA title. Great job this year and good luck in the future!

EAGLE SPIKESTERS

The Women's Volleyball team faced one of its toughest schedules in recent years in their 1989-90 season. Fifth year coach Gary Gildea packed their schedules with a record 40 games designed to challenge and improve the squad. As a result, the Eagles ended their season with a respectable 11-29 record, placing them 6th in the Big East.

This year's team consisted of a very young roster, including only two seniors, two juniors, four sophomores and three freshmen. However, the Eagles maintained a consistently strong line-up starring senior Terri Shanahan, junior Jennifer Smith, sophomores Michelle Korn, Jennifer McEnroe and Mary Ellen McKinnon and freshman Heather Cody. Fifth-year senior Leslie Bjerstadt, junior Ellen Blumenberg and sophomore Kim Hasley also added depth and experience to the team's attack.

The Eagles long season was highlighted by their premier hosting of the National Catholic Tournament in late September. The team performed solidly and finished second to their biggest rival, Providence. An extended break in October proved detrimental to the squad, who had a tough time regaining momentum for the second half of their season. Despite this setback, the Eagles were able to register important victories over other Big East teams, including Seton Hall and U Conn.

For the fourth year in a row, senior Terri Shanahan proved to be the powerhouse of the BC squad. Shanahan collected her third MVP award and led the Eagles in every offensive and all but one defensive category. She posted season high totals in kills, aces and digs and was the first player in BC history to record more than 1000 kills and 200 aces in a career.

Although the Eagles will miss the talents of Shanahana and Bjerstadt, the team maintains a lot of potential and promises great things for the 1990s.

Boston College Golf Always A Stroke Ahead!

The BC Men's Golf Team began its 1989-90 campaign with only moderate success, despite being "laden with its most talented group of players ever" according to long-time coach and Associate A.D. Ed Carroll. At the beginning of their fall schedule, the team was ranked first in Massachusetts and one of New England's Top Three. Senior tri-captains Dan O'Donnell, Jim Callahan, and Anders Johncke led the team to Westpoint, New York, September 7-11 to compete in their season opener against 25 teams from all the East. Despite Junior Todd Barrett's solid 72-74-75-221 in the three day event, the squad finished just outside the top ten. The following weekend, the team ventured to New Haven, Connecticut for the 40 team Yale Invitational. Again, Barrett led the Eagles, with sophomore Pete Keller, a top ranked amateur turning in several solid rounds. Next, the Eagles prepared for the biggest event of the season: The Big East Championship in Potomac, Maryland. The three day tournament was played at the TPC course at Arenel; the BC team entered the competition as slight favorites over St. John's. Although the men from The Heights discovered that their scores were not all that low, they lost the event to St. John's. Their season was rounded-out by The New England Championships at The Cape, and the Wildcat Invitational in New Hampshire. In both tournaments, sophomores Dan Hostetter and Timmy Magner led the BC squad; each turned in a sub-par round.

Over the cold weather months, the team began a conditioning program instituted by Coach Carroll. Their workouts included running and weightlifting on a four day per week schedule throughout the winter. In March, the Eagles attended an annual ten-day trip to Phoenix, Arizona for practice and competition in a three tournament schedule. The remainder of the Spring schedule included The Greater Boston Championship and Massachusetts State Open. BC finished the season in May, successfully competing in the Division I Championships.

Eagles Looking for Birdies

With perserverance and skill, the Boston College Women's Golf team faced tough opponents like Yale, Rutgers, U. Hartford and Dartmouth. Courageously coached by Peggy Connolly and Bobbi Carson, the tournaments included the Dartmouth Invitational, the ECAC's at the ever-challenging Yale course, and trips to the U. North Carolina and Mt. Holyoke.

Senior captain, star golfer, Susan Meehan led the BC team and consistently placed in the top five of all tournaments in which BC competed. Seniors Maura Chisholm, when burning up the Orchids Golf Course at Mt. Holyoke, and Colleen Sweeney who was able to hit out of anywhere, were valuable team players. Multi-talented Colleen Murnane, also a senior, was a fierce competitor and a valuable asset to the team. Others adding their talent and spirit to the team effort were: seniors, Mary Blaikie, Jane O'Brien, Maura Quinn, Maryanne McNeil and junior, Elizabeth McDonald. Watch for upcoming sophmores Beth Agnew and Mary Duffy and freshmen, Muffy Lewis and superstar, Kelli Weaver.

BC RUGGERS
Tackling a Tough Season

The Boston College Men's Rugby Club took the field this season aiming to win the New England Championship, a title that has eluded the team since its inception in 1967. Led by captains Phil Gaechter and Bill Cotter, the team began practice in September with abouding confidence, having just returned from a successful Spring season. Ken Daly, who volunteers his time to help coach the team, was excited about this year's prospects, looking to the strength and ability of returning seniors, Paul Edmondson, Peter Dube, James Meehan, Sean McCloskey, Paul Conill and talented underclassmen, Jody Morris, Ted Jenkin and Steve Gwozdz.

The season, however, did not live up to such lofty expectations. A promising opening game win over Tufts buoyed the team's spirit. BC experienced success again, triumphing over Amherst and tying Northeastern. However, losses to arch-rivals Harvard and BU left BC out of the New England Tournament again this year. A strong showing in a late season loss to a powerful Cal-Berkeley ended the fall season on a upbeat note.

However, success in Rugby is not measured in wins alone. The enjoyment of the game and the friendships secured keep players coming back to one of the most popular clubs at Boston College.

WOMEN'S RUGBY

Kathy Pignone

The BC Women's Rugby Football Club succeeded this year in becoming the 1989-90 New England champions. Under the guidance of coach Ken Daly and captains Barrie Tyler and Sezy Gerow, BC Women's Rugby defeated last year's champion, Dartmouth College, as well as UVM, Harvard, Brown, UNH, Wellesley, and Williams. In April the team travelled to the University of Virginia to represent New England in the All Eastern Rugby Tournament.

BC Women's Rugby has been in existence for over 11 years and fields two sides of players. The keys to their overwhelming success has been a strong team unity, a solid base of young players and excellent coaching and leadership. The team is a member of the New England Rugby Football Union which regulates and mediates all the collegiate and town teams in New England. Rugby has become an increasingly popular sport in America with several thousand collegiate and town teams existing across the nation. The level of play has matured to new heights among men and women's collegiate teams, making the sport physically demanding yet increasingly rewarding.

BC Women's Rugby would like to express its deepest appreciation to those pople who gave their support to our success: Mr. Ken Daly, Mr. Edward Carroll, BC Men's Rugby, all our parents (may they continue to pay the medical bills) and friend without whom we wouldn't have gotten to where we did.

This year's wrestling team consists of many seasoned veterans, led by senior captains Greg Pulskamp, Joe Nugent and John Merklinger. The supporting cast centers around fellow seniors Rob Lally, Chuck Hurchalla, Rene Canezin and Mike Alvarez, most of whom have been on the varsity squad since their freshman year.

The season began well, with a one point losing decision to Western New England College, a Perennial Division III powerhouse. The team stayed tight, despite forfeiting one match and having a 180 pound wrestler square off with WNEC's heavyweight. After the match, WNEC's coach was quoted as saying, "This is the best BC team I've seen in years!"

The second half of the season looks bright for BC's grapplers. With some of their toughest matches to come, they are looking forward to the challenges ahead of them. The culmination of their season will be the New England Tournament, in which they hope to produce three champions and numerous place-winners.

Last year the Eagles posted a 20-17 record improving upon 1988's 15-16 mark. 1989 was the beginning of a new era for BC baseball with the hiring of Richard Maloney as head coach.

Pitching and hitting were the team's strong points. Doug MacNeil led most pitching categories with nine wins and one loss earning all Big East honors. Also contributing to the quality pitching were seniors Tom Casey, Chris Piela and Pat Fitzgerald, juniors Dave Dawson, Dan Connelly and Tim Smith and sophomores Eddie Abany and Brian Looney. Marty Naughton led the team in hitting with a .384 batting average. During Big East games Brian "the vacuum" McGourthy hit .456 and earned all Big East honors. Brian is also an excellent right fielder, handling the treacherous conditions of Shea field. Kevin Connolly and Lance Wallin proved to be the teams' best clutch hitters getting the big hits when needed. Pinch hitting was also a strong point for the Eagles in '89 anchored by Rusty Staubike, Joe Shoenfeld, and strongman Pete Northgraves. Defensively, the team's strengths were in centerfield with Greg Radachowsky and second base's Greg "Gator" Miller.

This year's team returns most of the pitching staff and hopes to improve defensively with freshman Tom Mandile at shortstop and Thomas Carney at first base. Coach Maloney, with assistants John Brown and Bob Sannicandro are optimistic about this year's upcoming season, raising the number of season games to forty-five. The team plays 10 games in early March during which they will be on a trip to Winter Haven, Florida. This trip is a result of the efforts of team manager, Brian Connor.

Eagles set sail!

photos by Mary Manion

The varsity sailing team raced to solid finishes throughout the 1989-90 season. The lack of senior sailors was compensated for by many talented underclassmen. Junior captain John Bohan, junior Charlie Flather and sophomore Dove Rosow consistently turned in strong performances.

The women's team had an extremely successful season, boosting their national rank to ninth place. Senior captian Martha Pfarr, senior Carolyn Shea, and juniors Kerry Tyson and Kathleen Byrne raced competitively in major intersectional and trophy regattas.

The freshman team made an excellent showing as well, finishing near the top in many regattas. Skippers Ned Roseberry and Bill Smith and crews Beverly Soares and Jen Creedon raced strongly and consistently throughout the season. The presence of many skilled underclassmen sailors should ensure the team's continued success.

BC gets first tourney bid since '86

The Eagles broke out of the gates early to gain momentum. Below: the leadership of Mark Eagan helped BC to an 8-10-1 record.

While not much was expected from the 1990 men's soccer team, the Eagles met every challenge that confronted them. After a rather disappointing pre-season, the Eagle triumphed over one of the toughest schedules in New England. Behind second year coach Ed Kelly and a host of star players, the Eagles received their first bid to the Big East Tournament since 1986.

Due to big early season wins over such powerhouse teams as Syracuse and Hartford, the Eagles were able to build the momentum which would sustain them throughout the regular season. Co-captains Mark Eagan and Andy Sage led the Eagles to a respectable 8-10-1 record. Seniors Scott Morrell, Greg O'Brien, Greg Schwake and Stuart Tallmadge were also instrumental in several of the Eagle victories.

Coach Kelly, named Big East Coach of the Year, inspired his players to a late season triumph over the talented Harvard squad. This win, coupled with the Eagles' flawless home record, was enough to carry the team into post-season play. On a rainy day in November, the Eagles ended their season with a tough loss to UConn.

The Eagles move into next season with great hopes and expectations for upcoming victories. Rookie of the Year, Justin Ciccarelli and a strong line-up of other young players promise to make the Eagles an exciting team in the future.

EAGLE HOOPS '90

Selections from the following article by Kerry Hughes, Sports Editor of The Heights, were taken from the March 19, 1990 edition of The Heights: Well, it's finally over. After five long, frustrating months, the BC men's basketball team put their dismal 1989-90 campaign to rest with an 88-70 loss to Pittsburgh in the first round of the BIG EAST Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

The Eagles finished the season with an overall record of 8-20, a lowly 1-15 in the BIG EAST.

From the start it was clear that this would be a rebuilding year for the Eagles as they began life without Dana Barros, and brought six freshmen to the roster.

"I was very disappointed with the way the season went, and I'm sure the kids were as well," commented head coach Jim O'Brien. But we made a commitment to go with a younger group, and we had to take a step back to take two steps forward. We knew we were going to take our lumps a little bit, and it was really a struggle from the beginning," said O'Brien.

A lack of experience plagued the Eagles all season, as the team did not return any double figure scorers, and at times had three freshmen in the starting lineup, with Lior Arditti, David Hinton, and Michael Reese.

"We didn't play with many seniors this year," noted O'Brien, "And traditionally in this conference young players don't come in and become major contributors right away. But next year, these kids will be a year wiser and ready to play at a higher level."

"Finding someone to lead on the floor is a concern for next season; you can't always do it from the sidelines," said O'Brien. A leader should emerge from next year's team as the Eagles will be much more experienced, and will return three senior veterans: Doug Able, Corey Beasley, and Willy Foley. Also joining the club will be highly touted recruit Bill Curley, who should be a contributor during his rookie season.

It was a long, tough, disappointing season for the Eagles, but the sacrifices made this year will hopefully pay off in the near future.

DOMINATES HOCKEY EAST

In a year which has brought disappointing seasons for both the Eagles football and basketball teams, the BC Eagles '89-'90 Hockey team gave the BC faithful something to smile about, winning both the Hockey East regular season title and the tournament championship, as well as travelling to compete in the Final Four of the NCAA National Championship in Detroit, Michigan.

This year's successful season was an uphill battle for the Eagle skaters as they started the season with dismal losses to Providence, BU, and Northeastern. It looked as if the Eagles, who ironically had ranked Number One in preseason national polls, would be heading down the same frustrating path as their football and basketball counterparts. Then it happened. . .

With a few adjustments to the front line and a new emphasis on defense, BC came alive and played with a fury not experienced on the Heights in a long time. In the first week of December, the Eagles began their current winning streak, sweeping a series against the league-leading Maine Blackbears. With the start of the new decade, BC turned on the heat with a winning momentum, pulling off a record of 11-1-1, the only loss was another heartbreaker to BU in this year's Beanpot Tournament. By mid-February, BC once again found itself head to head with the Blackbears of Maine, battling for the Hockey East Championship.

In what seemed to be the climax of the tournament, the Eagles overcame Maine in a 4-3 victory before a raucous sellout crowd at Kelley Rink. At this point, the starting front line of Steve Heinze, David Emma, and Marty McInnis--affectionately known as the HEM line--accounted for well-over half of the team's cumulative points this season.

But the season's consistently thrilling victories were far from over! The Eagles' next challenge came in the NCAA tournament against Minnesota's Golden Gophers in a best-of-three series. A first game win gave another boost to BC's morale with a 4-2 victory over Minnesota. However, the Gophers came back to win the second game, 2-1. In the spirit of this year's successes, the Eagles dominated Minnesota, 6-1 in the final game of the series, advancing to the NCAA Final Four Contest in Detroit to meet Wisconsin. . .

Besides the consistently outstanding performances of the "HEM line", BC's '90 squad was led by the brilliant performances of Hobey Baker candidate and All-American Greg Brown, and Hockey East MVP, Scott LaGrand; Senior, Bill Nolan and Sophomore, Ted Crowley also contributed to the team's effort and success.

GLIDING TO VICTORY!

The 1990 Boston College Women's Hockey Team was comprised of twenty-six hard working individuals. Some of these women appeared to have been "born with skates on their feet," while others have skated for the first time just this year.

This diverse group of young women successfully pulled this year's team together to produce the first winning record in the history of BC women's hockey. The organization was without athletic scholarships, but BC provided equipment and ice time to augment the enthusiasm and dedication of the team.

Leadership was maintained by senior Lisa Pickel and assistant Kristen Leens. The 1990 team had only two returning seniors; as a result, they relied heavily on junior and sophomore talent. BC's offense was strengthened with the surprise addition of Liz Power, a transfer student from UNH. A highly recruited goalie, Carrie Tiernan, boasted one of the the best records in the area. These two stand-out athletes accomplished success with the dedication and devotion of the team as a whole.

BC Women's Hockey tckled a tough schedule consisting of games against Northeastern, Harvard, Providence and Concordia, a tough team from Canada. Next season promises continued success for the Lady Eagles who have proven their determination and dedication to winning in the BC Hockey tradition.

A Splashing Success!

Members of this year's team are cheering louder, swimming faster, and realize that the future of the Boston College Men's Swim Team is brighter than ever. Coach Tom Groden looks with optimism to the 1990's: "We will no longer settle for mediocrity. Our focus is on being consistantly one of the best swim teams in the area and winning The New Englands."

In observing the talent of BC Swimming, it is remarkable that the team does not depend on athletic scholarships. Nevertheless, senior co-captains Todd Hewett and Matt Mysliwec have successfully fired up the team with the assistance of a few wily underclassmen. Todd's outstanding contribution to the team, who just recently broke his own record, is evident each time he dives. Hewett presently holds records in both the 50 and 100 yard freestyle events. Other major "splashes" are provided by Craig Jones, Rob Strong, Rick McMorrow and Peter Sullivan all of whom will be returning as seniors next year. Sophomore talents Maarten Kraaijvanger and Michael Ryan will combine with the returning freshmen to make BC Swimming more powerful than ever.

Senior Steve Murray enthusiastically notes that "the quality of our schedule has dramatically improved over the past four years." This improvement coupled with the achievements and enthusiasm of this year's program will ensure the realization of Coach Groden's goals for the 1990's and beyond.

The men's track & field team, headed by Karen Keith, has had some outstanding performances this season despite their youth. They are co-captained by junior Kevin Nichols and senior Bryan Sadowski. Senior Mike Pieroni, who has excelled in both the 3000m and 5000m, won the New England's in the 5000. He also qualified for the ICAAAA's in both events. Junior Dermont Fitzpatrick is following in Mike's footsteps very nicely, proving to be as successful as Mike has been in ther past. He also qualified for the ICAAAA's in both the 3000m and 5000m.

Kevin Nichols has qualified for the ICAAAA's in the 35 lb. wt., and is looking for another stellar performance outdoors in the discus. Last year he threw 169'10" and is hoping for a shot in the Division I Nationals this year. Junior Kevin Boland is quietly shining throughout the New England track & field circuit with times in the 400m consistently hitting 49.0 seconds and 1:05.90 for the 500.

The rest of the team consists of sophomores and freshmen. The most notable young stars are sophomores Waldy Clark, Jamalh Prince, Saadiq El-Amin, Peter Joel, Brian Gourley, Jason Greene, Jeff Petruska, and Keith Yuen. Coach Karen Keith has no doubt had a tremendous year form he freshmen and can only smile at the future she is building with them. Though young and inexperienced, people like Brian Murphy have made an immediate impact throughout the New England area. Other outstanding freshmen who will be looked upon the carry the weight of the team in the future include Ramon Neves, Rob Williams, Tom Sheeran, Mike Atwood, Derek Hedges, Peter Hogan, and Rich Robinson.

The Boston College Men's Track & Field program shines brightly for the future with the abundance of quality young runners along with the already exisitng veteran leadership.

ALWAYS A STEP AHEAD!

Coach Karen Keith's 1989-90 Women's Track & Field Team began its quest to bring its name back into the ranks of the best teams in the East. The task was difficult as the team lacked the depth of seniority. The women began their season relying on the multi-talented underclasswomen. The freshman crop brought to the Heights: All-State hurdler, Marielle Flinterman who immediately broke the school 55HH record, which also qualified her for the ECAC's, and also Elaine Veloukas whose triple jump also qualified her for the ECAC's, and rounding out the squad was Debra Marlowe, another ECAC's qualifier.

For sophomores, Heather Grimshaw defended her Greater Boston title in the 1000m and an ECAC qualifying time; she had a record of 4:58.92 in the mile run. Juniors, Jennifer Smith (shot put) and Becky Peterson (3000m) helped Jennifer Rolfe successfully compete in the New England's. Candace Nichols finished off her indoor season with success in both the high jump and long jump, achieving a second-place finish overall in the New England Championships. Other scorers in the meet were: Laurie Leonard, Marielle Flinterman, Elaine Veloukas, and the relay team of Heather Grimshaw, Laurie Leonard, Debra Marlowe, and Gail Harris.

Seniors included Elizabeth Mahanor, Christine Swanick, and Gail Harris who will be competing in the Summer Olympics of 1992 in Barcelona, Spain.

B. C. SKI TEAM

The BC Ski team, after completing a very successful 1988-89 season, is expected to do even better this season. Last year's Eagles men and women's teams placed in the top ten in the National Collegiate Ski Association which is composed of top teams in the country. This year's national championships are being held at the Eagles home mountain, Waterville Valley, New Hampshire. Head coach, Bill Toof has high expectations.

Leading the team this year are captains Pam Mercer and Tom Healy, who were both All East skiers last season. Also returning are seniors Kim Smart, Chris Osborn, Andy Gehl, Matt Cunningham, and John Geisleman. These seniors have put four years into the team. Without thier dedication and determination, the program would be nowhere near the caliber it is today.

The Boston College Crew Club is now afloat for a third year under the direction of co-captains, Christine Hemphill and Gregg Stallwood, and coaches Dave Isenberg, Amber Selke, and Alex Selvig. The young team races long "head" races throughout the fall season. After a grueling and challenging winter training session, the team spends Spring Break rowing in Tampa, Florida preparing for the Spring Sprint Races. Many hours of hard work, unrelenting dedication, and fundraising events have made the crew team very successful since its inception a few years ago. The BC Crew team is already looking forward to the world-famous Head of the Charles Regatta next October.

For Boston, for Boston,
We sing our proud refrain!
For Boston, for Boston,
'Tis wisdom's earthly fane.
For here all are one
And their hearts are true,
And the towers on the Heights
Reach the Heav'n's own blue.
For Boston, for Boston
Till the echoes ring again!

For Boston, for Boston,
Thy glory is our own!
For Boston, for Boston,
'Tis here that Truth is known.
And ever with the Right
Shall thy heirs be found,
Till time shall no more
And thy work is crown'd
For Boston, for Boston
For Thee and Thine alone.

Student Life

Life at BC is like being thrust upon a never-ending whirlwind of activity. There's never a dull moment.

A concert by Ziggy Marley in recognition of AHANA's tenth anniversary enlivened Conte Forum in September. The year was also highlighted by smaller pub concerts featuring performers such as Livingston Taylor and Mario Cuoumo. Cafe nights in McElroy spotlighted the musical talents of campus musicians such as BC BOP, The Bostonians and Voices of Imani.

University clubs were active in everything from voluntary efforts, to publications and programming. The UGBC brought Maya Angelou and Mario Cuomo to BC. The staff of PULSE celebrated 20 years of voluntary efforts in the Boston area, and The Heights gathered to celebrate 70 years of publication. Students also organized for national rallies in Washington DC.

Sports played its traditional role at BC. Although our football team suffered a 2-9 season, fans still continued to tailgate.

Theatrical productions, lectures, intercollegiate sports, the marching band, the Plex, mod parties, the Golden Eagle Dancers, kegs (off-campus of course),... the list goes on. Life at BC during the 1989-90 academic year was full of excitement for those who just stepped outside their dorm.

On October 22, the twenty-sixth annual Head of the Charles Regatta took place. Once again, thousands of spirited spectators and dedicated teams from all over the globe flocked to the banks of the historic Charles River, braving cold temperatures and strong winds. Unfortunately, BC Crew failed to compete due to a deadline problem. However, a crowd of BC students turned out in full force to battle the crowds on the banks of the river and the winds over Elliot Bridge; but, most importantly, they helped to cheer all the athletes on to victory.

More than a "European Vacation". . .

Over 250 members of the Class of '90 opted to teach or study abroad in 1989. Some of these students and teachers left life in Chestnut Hill for either a semester or an entire year. Traditionally, BC students select European "favorites" such as London, Paris, and Madrid. Added to the list of this year's adventures were studies in Thailand, Australia, Norway, Ireland, China and of course, Angers and Tirellan Heights.

Most of the students who traveled abroad say that studying or teaching outside of our country is an amazing and eye-opening experience. Students are challenged to learn a foreign language--sometimes in just four weeks! Living in another country forces a student to respect different values and customs that vary from culture to culture. After a few harrowing experiences with lost coats, borrowed 35mm cameras, 35-hour-train-rides-from-Hell, harrassment from Spaniards en route to Barcelona, and minor warfare between BC novios, traveling from country to country seems a bit easier. Battling to understand train schedules, youth hostel reservations, and restaurant menus in foreign languages becomes less of a colossal task. Each year, BC students--including Sub Turri Copy Editors--meet new people, tour unusual places and cities, and manage to make a few good friends along the way.

No two experiences abroad are exactly alike; however, all participants return "home" to the U.S.A. with a better understanding of different people and cultures. In addition, many participants learn about what being American really means. Travel abroad does more than "broaden your horizons"; it yields a new perspective on the world outside of both BC and the United States of America.

PERSPECTIVES

Each of the following individuals has lived up to the motto, "Ever to Excel" in his or her own way throughout their four years at Boston College. Though no specific qualifications were established for selecting these people, all of our choices stand out amongst the many who have made a difference here at BC. As we interviewed each of them, all agreed that their "BC experience" has provided many opportunities for self-expression and involvement in our community. The 1990 Staff wishes to recognize these individual profiles as exemplifying standards of excellence both on and off campus.

KRISTAL BUDD

A Northside School of Arts Graduate from Atlanta, Kristal Budd remarks, "I think every freshman should take advantage of all the opportunities at BC; don't be apathetic, find out what you like most, and get involved." A Communications major with a Black Studies minor, Kristal Budd set out to practice what she truly believes. As a freshman, she noticed flyers for the Gospel choir, "Voices of Imani," and due to her interest in the performing arts joined the group. "I always like to sing . . .it's singing for a purpose; it's as if I am sending a message to my audience," she commented. "Voices of Imani" presents 8 - 10 performances throughout the school year.

During her sophomore and junior years, Kristal Budd was a Varsity BC cheerleader. She enjoys cheerleading because "you really learn to work as a team." Matt Marcotte was her immediate cheerleading partner and remains a close friend.

In Kristal's sophomore year, she made her theatre debut in Hair and Langston Hughes' "Don't You Want to be Free." Coupled with her membership in Black Student Forum, she is eager to promote awareness in the BC community concerning ignorance. Hughes' play outlines the struggles of Afro-American slaves in the Civil Rights Movement. Budd feels that this African awareness allows students to expand past cultural obstacles: "I think it's important that Afro-American students learn of their history."

Kristal Budd's senior year consists of an internship at Chanel 5, a position as Teacher's Assistant for Dr. Fishman's Principles of Communications, RA in Walsh Hall and most rewarding to her, tutoring for Project 2000. Every Saturday, Kristal tutors 25 students from the inner-city in Math and English. She likes the idea of sharing her knowledge with these students. Her goal is to see the children graduate in the year 2000.

One of the greatest achievements for Budd was her "Soul Food" program. With her RA position and Black Students support, she was able to plan a large event for the entire campus. BC students came to the Silvio O. Conte forum to participate in the meal. The presence of Father Monan, school deans and the large turnout of students pleased her deeply and rendered her hard work a success.

Kristal's thoughts for the future are a little uncertain. If her past foreshadows anything, her future seems fruitful. Kristal's work and involvement at BC have enriched our experience. Her success here is a indication of a continuing commitment to excellence.

KERRY DINNEEN

Three highly regarded ideals at BC are leadership, service and diversity. Kerry Dinneen lives up to and in some respects, surpasses, these qualities. An English major, Kerry successfully expanded her horizons at BC by becoming involved as an Appalachia volunteer and a resident assistant. Outside BC, she spent time doing research in Hawaii and intends to spend next year in the Jesuit Volunteer Corps.

For the past four years, Kerry has donated her time during Spring Break to the Appalachia volunteer program. Freshman year, a sign on Newton Campus sparked her interest and she found herself on her way to Alleria, Ohio. There, she and other volunteers worked in a halfway house for children under 18. Most of the residents were just out of juvenile detention centers and waiting for placements in foster homes. The strict regulations in the home limited the activities of the kids mostly to keep them away from drugs. The BC volunteers lightened up the everyday routine by taking them out, talking to them and entertaining them.

The next year, Kerry chose a more rural trip to Frakes, Kentucky. At the Henderson settlement, an old mining town run by a methodist work camp, she and her group helped build a pig barn and worked on a greenhouse. This trip called upon more manual labor skills than the Ohio trip, and contact with the locals was limited, but the services rendered were equally valuable.

Her Junior year, Kerry decided to lead a trip back to Alleria. As a leader, Kerry noted how her group interacted with each other as well as with the residents of the halfway home. She says, "Everyone is really awkward at first and no one really talks. But it's an intense week. Things get progressively better."

This year, Kerry, Marguerite Douglas and Angela Orlando led the entire Appalachia program, working with Mary Heir, Katy Frattiani and Father Cleary in University Chaplaincy. Her responsibilities include helping to pick the places for trips, fundraising, and organizing meetings. In order to raise about $26,000 for their trips, the Appalachia volunteers had a raffle, a dance-a-thon, point drives, and candy guesses. Also, this year, everyone worked a shift at the concession stands at Conte forum to raise money. Kerry gives credit to all the trip leaders, saying they have accomplished a lot in a short time.

When asked about the impact of what she has seen in the past four years of volunteering, Kerry says, "As much as you have to accept what's going on, you have to find a balance with your life." She explains that the trips make you experience different people and ideas, adding "You feel good just being there." Spending hours riding in vans and living together helps, she says, "You get to know so many other people from BC that you wouldn't get to know under other circumstances."

Kerry has also used her leadership skills as an RA in Walsh. She felt prompted to apply during her sophomore year because she felt bothered by the segregation between classes at BC. She spent her junior year getting to know quite a few sophomores in Walsh. She recalls her first weekend on duty during the USC game: "The first weekend was so enlightening because you really are on the other side." Soon she felt a mutual respect between herself and her residents.

Kerry's interest in Marine Biology took her to Hawaii last summer to do field research on the social ecology of Spinner dolphins. She found the program through the School for Field Studies at Northeastern U. She jumped at the opportunity, seeing it as a way to act on her interest without interfering with her English major at BC. She and others on her program spent 10 hours per day monitoring the dolphins from zodiac boats and from cliffs. They would photographically identify 100-150 dolphins and chart their movements according to variables in the bay. The hope is that the bay might someday be a sanctuary for the dolphins.

In the next few years, Kerry would like to do more field research and has an interest in environmental law. Next year, however, she plans to continue her interest in service and volunteering in the Jesuit Volunteer Corps.

JOHN L. MAHONEY

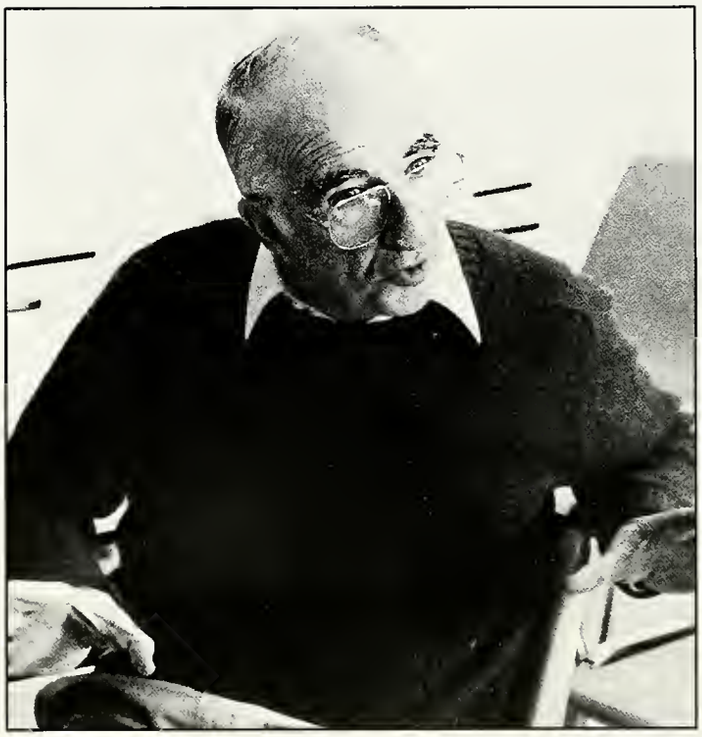
Stimulating class sectures, developed writing and research: these are what English Professor John L. Mahoney considers to be an integral part of teaching. Mahoney, who was named Massachusetts Professor of the Year for 1989 by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE), has been upholding these standards during the past 35 years.

Mahoney, who has been teaching at Boston College since 1956, said the award spotlights what is on the mind of students today. "They want good classroom teaching," he said. The criteria for the CASE award is extraordinary effort as a scholar and a teacher, service to institution and profession, and evidence of impact on and involvement with students.



Teaching must be "informed, stimulating, and provocative," said Mahoney, who acknowledges that staying alive as a teacher is a great challenge. "One of the deadliest things is teacher burnout," he said. He credits reading widely, staying close to young people, and always striving to become a better writer as his means of growing both as a teacher and writer.

Inspiring students to hold as priorities continually developing habits of mind and critical thinking are important to Mahoney. In a Heights article written by Mahoney for freshman orientation he raised the question "Is sameness good enough, satisfying enough?" This question has been an impetus for Mahoney, who said that he still has room for improvement in his life although he is in the late stages of his career. "I just think I can be an even better teacher than I am. There is a lot to learn from other colleagues," said Mahoney, who is the first BC professor to receive the CASE award.

Dean of Arts and Sciences Robert Barth called Mahoney "the complete professor." His classes are legendary at Boston College, be it undergraduate discussions, lectures, graduate seminars, or individual reading and research projects. He can stir a class by the power of his eloquence, and touch the lives of his student not only by sharing what is deepest in himself but also by evoking their best from them."

Mahoney, who has been described by many as "pro-BC," said he has seen BC improve steadily over the years. "BC is slowly developing into a major university. It's fun to have been a part of it," he said. He received both his B.A. and M.A. from Boston College and his doctorate from Harvard University. He achieved full professorship in 1965 and served as department chair for two terms during the 1960's.

Mahoney spent his fall semester researching a critical biography on the Romantic poet William Wordsworth in England's Lake District where Wordsworth lived most of his life. He was back at the Heights for the spring semester teaching both undergraduate and graduate courses.

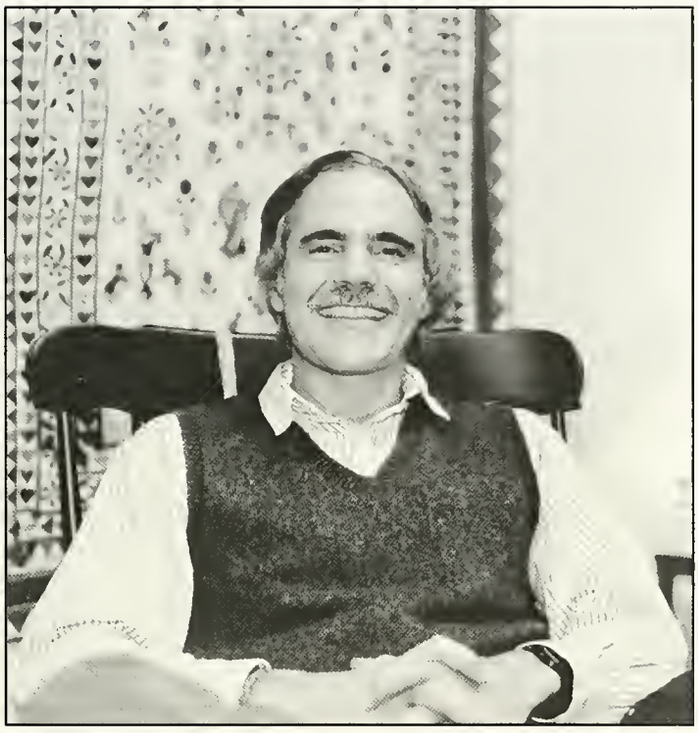
The Society of Jesus identifies itself as joining the world-wide struggle for a faith that does justice. As director of the Boston College International Volunteer Program (IVP) and Associate Director of the Faith, Peace, and Justice Program, Fr. Julio Giulietti S.J. has made a significant impact on some students to commit themselves to the universal struggle for peace through justice.

Fr. Julio first came to the Boston College community when he received a call from the University during his tenure at the Jesuit School of Theology at Cambridge. BC felt there was a need to start some sort of international volunteer program. In December of 1982, about 16 students expressed interest in joining the program. Through successive years, 134 students have donated two years of their lives helping people in countries of political, social and economic hardship through the IVP. Julio has had overseas experience with students in Japan, Latin America, and the Phillipines. He also has a doctorate in the History of Christian Spirituality where he has experience in counseling, psychology, and theology.



Through his directorship with IVP, he became associate director of the Faith, Peace, and Justice Program which is now a minor studies program at BC. Fr. Julio teaches The Challenge of Justice and Living Justly in American Society. When asking Fr. Julio about his stance on the issue of justice he replied, "For people to lead a fully human life, they need the following components of justice: sufficient life goods which are food, clothing, and shelter and a job to support these. They must have participation in the political, economic, and social forces that act on a society in which people live. They must have a sense of self-esteem as a person and as a people. Finally, they must have interdependence where people help and challenge each other to take responsibility for their lives. Justice is the balance between rights and duties and the ultimate justice is not what a particular nation or economic system defines justice. For me, justice is what God wants for his people. I am convinced that what God wants for the world--a peace based on justice--is only possible with our participation. I am really struck with God's love, especially as we see it in the life of Jesus, and to be a member of the group that names itself after his name--The Society of Jesus--is a thing that brings me great joy."

Fr. Julio has motivated many students to commit themselves to lives of working for social justice. He says, "The best way for me to do that at Boston College is to take good people who are struggling to clarify their faith, to put them in touch with the reality of the world, the fact of God's love for them, and then invite them to take responsible action based on both. I would like my students to commit themselves to caring for the legitimate needs of the world. This is why I am a Jesuit, because I see the Jesuit life wrapped up in faith, peace, and justice."

1990 marks Julio's last year at BC after nearly eight years of dedication. He will join the Society's Apostolate with Hispanics, spending about 14 months in Latin America working with Fé y Alegria, the Jesuit sponsored grassroots educational projects throughout Latin America. He expects to be working in Guatemala, Venezuela, and possibly Ecuador.

We wish Julio Giulietti the best of luck as he leaves Boston College and thank him for his positive impact and sense of duty as professor, IVP director, and friend to many students. We will remember Julio as a vital part of the Boston College community.

CHRIS HENTEMANN

Sitting back in his McElroy office surrounded by UGBC President, Chris Hentemann recounts his decisions, goals and successes of the past year. A Finance major in CSOM, Hentemann became involved in UGBC very unexpectedly. He remembers when VP of Programming Jason Kelley in 1987 asked Chris to help out with plans for Jay Leno and later George Carlin. Chris saw himself as "backed into UGBC." Chris had previously been involved with the Judicial Board throughout his freshman and sophomore years and replies that his responsibilities were fufilled at "the right place at the right time." He continued working for UGBC and became VP of Programmming under Matt Pye's administration.

Chris believes that he learned a lot at UGBC and understood the actual workings of UGBC through the experience he had the previous year before his decision to run for President. He also "learned what not to do." With the encouragement and coaxing of Bob Bisset, UGBC VP Executive, Hentemann set out to run for UGBC president in the Spring of 1989. He wanted to stress his major goal, "Expansion and Integration." He wanted the government and people involved with it to be open, personable, and have no qualms of seizing opportunities. By "expanding," he wanted to incorporate more positions in the UGBC cabinet along with more responsibility to people. He would "integrate" his cabinet by taking a cross section of all types of BC students, and wanted to form a "new cabinet." Hentemann wanted open communication with this cabinet and wanted to use their input in the decision-making process. His desire to work as a team is exemplified when he chose to run with Bob Bisset as a "single ticket." This move eventually initiated a by-law that called for each president to name his or her VP before Election Day.

Chris was elected as UGBC president in the Spring and immediately set out to form his cabinet. After extensive interviewing, he nominated a group of highly experienced students to comprise his support staff. This group exemplified Hentemann's call for diversification.

With the successful programming of Ziggy Marley and Mario Cuomo, Hentemann met his goals of strengthening relations with AHANA while managing to avoid unilateral decisions. He implemented the new "programming survey" calling for the cabinet and executives to make decisions as an organized unit. With his AHANA support and motivated cabinet, Hentemann successfully expanded communications. He upgraded it at all levels and with the help of The Heights, was able to speak, inform, and listen to the concerns of a majority of BC students. Chris also accounts his success with his strong relations with Trustees, Administration, and Father Monan. His personality facilitated good relations, since Chris can be classified as a "realist" rather than an idealist. He has never been considered a dreamer, but more as a practical person. When confronted with a problem, Chris works to follow it through until a successful conclusion or resolution is reached. He thanks everyone, especially Bob Sherwood who he highly respects for openmindedness, fairness, and pro-student attitude. All in all, Chris says "as long as you listen and keep your initial objectives straight," success will prevail.

Of course, Hentemann knew that he had daily obstacles and when confronted with MassPirg dilemmas, he replied that he researched and "did his homework" before presenting it to the Senate. He praises the Senate as one of the most accomplished bodies BC has ever experienced. He cites their work and improvisational abilities in compromise as representing the best of a "democratic process."

With respect to his entire BC experience, Chris responded: " without a doubt, my experience of having been involved with UGBC has been the most rewarding! I would highly encourage students to take advantage of the opportunities available." He strongly believes that there is enormous potential in students' power to dictate "what you want to do," Hentemann adds, since BC students are progressive and highly capable people.

DAN NOONAN

In recent years, theater at Boston College has grown and expanded into an intense, multi-faceted organization. Dan Noonan became involved in theater during his sophomore year, landing the lead role in The Drunkard. This led to an amazing career in acting at BC, with roles in such challenging plays as Of Mice and Men, Chicago, Translations, Rosencrantz and Guildenstern are Dead, Baby, Mother Courage, and the devastatingly powerful vietnam piece, Tracers.

Dan has been involved in both the Boston College Dramatics Society and the Contemporary Theatre of Boston College, a feat which calls for a diverse, serious actor. Yet Dan holds the attitude that as an actor at BC, "You're not doing it to be Meryl Streep, you're doing it to entertain and hopefully inform." He has established a balance between the traditional and the creative in his political science and theater majors. He asserts that "the more diverse you can be, the better."

In pursuing this diversity, Dan took advantage of the Junior Year Abroad program and the Abbey Theatre Workshop in Ireland. He developed his acting talents in Ireland and says of JYA, "London was great to develop other aspects of my life." Performing in Ireland added to what he calls "a fantastic time in my life."

On acting in general, Dan feels, "The greatest thing about plays is that you learn a lot about the subject matter. . . You are taught things and you do the research. . . You get to feel and experience the feelings of those people and that leaves and indelible mark on your memory." He draws much of his characters personalities from his own experiences and also studies subject matter in depth. Of Mice and Men, which deals with the mentally handicapped, Translations, an Irish play, and Tracers, which deals with an important contemporary issue, The Vietnam War, and its effects on those who lived through it. Dan explains, "With every role, I'm very excited I have the part, then I think I won't be able to do it. It's so hard, then all of a sudden, it clicks. I get the character. It's struggling and agonizing. But you're always glad as an end result.

Of BC, Dan says the best thing is the people here, both in and out of theater. "My roommates especially brought me a lot of happiness. . . My four years have been phenomenal," he commented. Specifically, Dan mentions Dr. Hecht as a mentor, calling him "the most positive thing about the theater. He is always concerned and working hard, pushing us in a positive sense. He maximizes our talents." "The best part of theater," Dan says, "is everyone works well together . . . a commitment to high standards, enthusiasm, and hard work. We respect each other." He adds, "It's neat to see the people at BC working so hard at something because they love it. How often do you find someone doing something they love?"

Though Dan doesn't plan to pursue acting as a career in the immediate future, he says, "Maybe one day." He plans to go to law school but always have some involvement in theater.

For Dan Noonan, it always comes back to enjoying yourself: "People are really cheating themselves if they don't enjoy the present and one goal because they'll never enjoy the future." He quotes his mother's saying "Happiness is not an end in itself, but a by-product of a well-lived life." Mrs. Noonan should be proud to have a son who lives by her words of wisdom.

LAURA SHUBILLA

What does service mean to you? For many individuals, it could mean one thing; for others, service connotes completely different ideas. Through the BC Para-professional Leadership Group, Urban Immersion Program, and volunteering at the Charles Street Jail, Laura Shubilla has exemplified her definition of what "service" means. An English and Communication major from Rockville, Maryland, Laura has consistently and successfully risen to the challenges of her many endeavors. Throughout her years at BC, Laura's views on her own role in society have gradually changed. "I wanted to become a corporate lawyer," Laura states, but her education here sparked an interest in rethinking important problems and priorities our generation must face.

Laura took three classes in BC's Faith, Peace, and Justice Program under the direction of Fr. Giulietti. She quickly recognized that true service meant a full commitment to something--not just once a month, but "actually incorporating it into your life." As director of the BC Para-professional Leadership Group, Laura was able to successfully revamp the program and direct the group towards a continued goal of "Training for Leadership; Leadership through Service." Clearly, the theme of service for others has been a motto Laura has had throughout her entire BC experience. As a sophomore, Shubilla began to research the group's history and analyze its previous projects. With the help of assistant director, Tim Mulligan, Laura was able to institute new programs including Group Dynamics and Formal/Public Speaking. The focus of each new program that was established aimed at exemplifying service as an external, outreach type of education. The groups' numerous projects included Dorm Day Service (a day of service in Boston donated by each Freshman dorm), and a consulting program for educating students through other students' knowledge. She explains, "at the time we took over, the program could have gone in many directions. I felt a need for leadership training which would focus on service. This type of leadership is often overlooked."

Not only is Laura Shubilla a valuable asset to BC, but she is also involved in our neighboring communities. This past year, her involvement in Urban Immersion and the Charles Street Jail Education Progam has proven the urgency and call to help those who are less fortunate. Initiated by her own interest, Laura called to volunteer her time in tutoring inmates at the jail. "Program Services" is a type of reform process for inmates who want to earn a Graduate Equivalency Diploma, learn English as a second language, and Life Skills. Laura works with these inmates one on one, helping to improve their basic math, reading, and writing skills.

Shubilla's participation in the BC Urban Immersion Program included a week in the Jamaica Plain section of Boston alongside 18 other volunteers. Work in The Boston Food Bank, Haley House, Little Brothers/ Friends of the Elderly, and Kit Clark Senior Home, was supplemented by workshops primarily focused on social action issues. Her volunteer work continued this Spring as a member of the Haiti relief group. Laura hopes to continue this rewarding work internationally next year. When asked if she ever gets burned-out by the stressful aspects of her work, Laura replied, "You have to get involved with aspects you really care for. It needs to mean something to you so that it never becomes a hassle or burden."

Laura's advice to BC students (both current and future) is to get a feeling for all opportunities that exist both on and off campus while you're here. She stresses that it is completely up to the individual to initiate interest, research, and ultimately act on this knowledge! Laura concludes by reminding us that there is always room for improvement--and plenty of opportunity to help.

ACTIVITIES

Although the academic experience is the main focus of a college career, extra-curricular activities offer a chance for a different kind of development. From Stylus to Chorale to Pulse, Boston College gives students this opportunity for enrichment in whatever they choose. "Ever to Excel," our theme for the 1990 yearbook evolves from a commitment to excellence in all areas, ranging from sports to theatre to volunteer work. Through these many and varied activities, students perhaps learn equally important lessons in leadership, working together and responsibilty. It is these qualities, learned outside of the classroom, that lead students to ever excel.

UGBC had an exciting and successful year. Besides increasing the number of services available to students, UGBC managed several popular events. Performers included Ziggy Marley and Livingston Taylor, and lecturers Mario Cuomo, Tom Clancy and Maya Angelou.

MARIO CUOMO

In the 1989-90 school year, UGBC succeeded in bringing some well-known people to speak at Boston College. Two of the most prestigious were New York Governor Mario Cuomo and author Tom Clancy.

SENIORS

It seems the best way to end this book is with the faces of the class it was made for. So far, we have seen what happened in the world we lived in, the activities and sports we participated in, the classes we attended and the lives we led.

1990's graduating class came into BC in the shadow of the Flutie era, gathering into Roberts Center for a UGBC Presidential Address. It seems strange to think that the next time our entire class would be together would be graduation day. Well, Roberts Center is gone, the Forum rises beneath the Heights, and the Class of 1990 takes off into the real world.

Enjoy these pages full of friends and classmates as we say a fond farewell to our days at Boston College.

Karen Elizabeth Noonan

We, the family and friends of Tricia and Karen wish to celebrate their lives which were tragically cut short in the crash of Pan Am Flight 103 on December 21, 1988. We love you and will forever miss you.

"Somewhere Over Scotland"

Somewhere over Scotland
your spirit will fly high.
Somewhere over Scotland,
the sky will always cry.
For from the sky was stolen,
some of the best and brightest stars
taken away so suddenly,
the loss is extra hard.
But God did bring them home,
in Heaven up above,
to comfort them forever,
and shower them with love.
Let faith then see us through to fill the sky again,
with stars so great and bright
the circle will not end.
Still somewhere over Scotland,
their spirits will fly high,
Somewhere over Scotland,
the sky will always cry.

BENEFACTORS

As Sub Turri is an organization independent form the University, we receive neither University funds nor a portion of the activity fee to defray production costs. Therefore, the staff of Sub Turri would like to extend its gratitiude to parents, friends, faculty members and alumnae who generously contributed to the 1990 edition of Sub Turri.

Keep in touch with Boston College.

the Heights has been the paper of record for Boston College since 1917. That's a long tradition of student-run journalism. The Heights was there for you during your BC career, and will be there for you in the future. Giving you the same great coverage of Eagle Sports. Giving you the scoop on the uncensored news from the Chestnut Hill. Giving you the feel of the arts in Boston.

Keep up with the Eagles. Subscribe to The Heights today.

Editor's Note

As the final pages of the 1989-90 Sub Turri come to completion, my emotions are both happy and sad. Of course, I am happy that we have successfully completed our project, but also sad to close the doors on something I have worked on throughout my entire college career.

We chose the motto "Ever to Excel" for this yearbook and as one can see, I think it rings true. Each section (whether it be sports or activities) depicts students, administrators and teachers who are driven to excellence.

Many memories have been captured and we invite you to look through these pages, relax and enjoy the documentation of this special year.

I want to thank all of the section editors and staff members who have given their time and energy. Many members are returning for their second year, thanks for your loyalty and diligence.

Special thanks to Molly Dempsey, our Managing Editor, Arnie Lohmann, Terry Poovey, Ed Ralicki, Carol Hughes, Hillsides A-64, my friends and Fr. McGowan, family. Good Luck to Becky and Dawn and future Sub Turri staffs.

--Jacqueline Fangonil

COLOPHON

The 1990 Sub Turri was published in April 1990 by Hunter Publishing Company, a division of Jostens in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. It is the 78th volume of the book with a press run of 2100 copies. Pages are printed using 100% black ink with pages 33-464 on dull paper and 1-32 on lustre paper. The cover is Maroon Mission with bevelled debossed gold lettering. The Gasson Tower has a rubbed gold with a gold foil over the Eagle. The cover/end sheets were designed by Rick Brooks. The primary type face is Goudy. All color photographs were made from color transparencies. Portraiture was done by Yearbook Associates located in Millers Falls, MA. Black and white film was developed, printed, and processed by the 1990 Photo Staff. No parts of this book may be reproduced without express written consent of the Sub Turri staff. All correspondence should be made to Sub Turri, McElroy 103, Chestnut Hill, MA 02167. Many thanks to Father McGowan, Arnold Lohmann, Carol Hughes and ODSD, Ed Ralicki and Yearbook Associates, The Heights, Rick Brooks, 1990 Patrons, Benefactors, Advertisers, and The Class of 1990.
